Big Gain for Arkansas Housing in Year 1971

Total construction in Arkansas in 1971 gained 19 per cent over 1970, and residential housing alone showed an increase of 50 per cent, according to a press release from the F. W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Co.

Not so good was the report on non-residential construction—commercial, manufacturing, etc. In this category 1971 posted only a 7 per cent advance over 1970.

However, the general economic letdown would explain the slump in business construction. It's hard to decide on expansion when you aren't selling all the production existing plants are capable of.

Prior to 1971 Arkansas had a lot of new starts in industry, but new housing dropped drastically. Now housing is on the march, and this will be a major factor in the whole pattern of economic recovery.

Housing employs an army of skilled men and the nature of their work requires constant purchase of automobiles and other big-ticket items. If you've watched the business indicators you have noted that car sales and housing starts slumped at the same time.

Therefore it's reasonable to believe the new surge in house-building will stimulate the motor industry this year.

Do-It-Yourself Move

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service is pushing a do-it-yourself movement among the nation's taxpayers in hopes that more will fill out their own returns this year.

IRS officials say they expect a decline in the number of taxpayers who use professional accounting services to fill out their returns for them. Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters said he hopes at least 30 million people can fill out their own returns this year.

IRS says there is no reason a taxpayer who earned under $20,000 a year, most of it in salaries and wages, should pay a company to fill out his return.

"We have stressed the fact that it's simple enough," Walters said. "The instructions and the illustrated examples in the tax booklet make filling out a return simple."

In a number of cases, the commissioner said, taxpayers who take the standard deduction have paid to get their return filed. He said the return is so simple that if a standard deduction is involved "your daughter in the fifth grade can fill it out this year."
Walters cited the case of a Florida man who paid $45 to get his return filled out last year when the simple one-page Form 1040 was involved and the man took the standard deduction.

The IRS has put into effect this year a system allowing an automatic two-month extension of the April 15 filing deadline for taxpayers.

James A. Carfagno Jr., 25, of Atkins filed suit Monday in federal court complaining that the Russellville Selective Service Board had illegally refused to reclassify him from his objector status to a 2A job deferment status even though he was a teacher.

He had been ordered to report for work at the Medical Center Tuesday.

Judge J. Smith Henley said the case would be tried in 20 to 30 days.

States had been completed to Israel's satisfaction Tuesday in a series of telephone calls in Washington between Israeli Ambassador Yitzhak Rabin and Joseph Sisco, American assistant secretary of state for Middle Eastern affairs.

Details were not announced. But a communique said: "The government decided to inform the U.S. administration of its readiness to take part in these talks ... aimed at reaching a special agreement on the reopening of the Suez Canal."

In Cairo, an official Egyptian spokesman said any Israeli decision would have to be relayed to U.N. mediator Gunnar Jarring before the Egyptian government would comment on it.

Although Sadat has rejected U.S. participation because of Washington's decision to supply more warplanes to Israel, he has repeatedly left the door open for U.N. mediation.

Egypt refused previously to go ahead with an agreement to reopen the canal because the Israeli government would not make an advance commitment to withdraw eventually from the entire Sinai desert.

Premier Golda Meir said Tuesday night that Jarring's peace mission had reached a stalemate because he had presented his own demands instead of leaving the bargaining to Israel and the Arabs.

Mrs. Meir said once Washington and Jerusalem reached a "clearer understanding," Egypt would realize that "despite her MIGS, missiles, tanks and Russian personnel," she was in no position to threaten war against the Jewish state.

The Israelis demanded that the Americans confine themselves to acting as go-betweens and not put forward any recommendations for a settlement, as Jarring did last February.

St. Mary's overlooks the Bog-side quarter where the 13 were killed Sunday in a battle with British paratroops.

With relations between the rival religious communities completely severed as a result of Sunday's bloodbath, Catholics were on strike everywhere in the North.

Shops were shuttered, factories closed and streets were empty in Londonderry and other predominantly Catholic communities. "We're living in ghost towns," said a local priest.

Draft Lottery Held for Two Million Turning 19

WASHINGTON (AP) — The draft lottery for two million men turning 19 this year began today with No. 29 being assigned to those born Sept. 26, 1953.

The second draw of capsules from two plexiglass drums in this fourth draft lottery, perhaps the last in the Vietnam war era that will actually draft men, mated No. 319 to men born Oct. 11, 1953.

Nov. 24 was drawn from a red capsule and No. 180 from a blue capsule on the third match of a ceremony in the Commerce Department auditorium that is expected to last about two hours.

The lottery decides the sequence of the call to military service in 1973, at least until July 1 of the year when the current draft authority expires. President Nixon has pledged to achieve a zero draft by then and make another extension of the draft unnecessary.

Draft Director Curtis W. Tarr, in remarks prepared to open the ceremonies in the Commerce Department auditorium, said:

"It is a continuing goal of President Nixon to establish an all-volunteer armed force, and thus to end reliance on the draft, by mid-1973. We do not know as yet what the draft call will be in 1973."

"Nor do we know as yet what the call will be for the remainder of 1972, but we do expect calls to be lower than they have been in recent years."

Tarr traced the short history of the draft lottery, starting in 1969, saying "both the U.S. military situation and Selective Service have changed a great deal."

"The manpower requirements of the armed services have decreased considerably, and there has been a corresponding lowering of the number of men inducted each year."

Tarr said the goal of all the changes in the draft "has been to make the draft, for as long as is necessary, as fair and equitable as possible to all young men."

For today's drawing the birthdates were placed in big red capsules and the numbers in blue ones. Each color group then went into giant plexiglass drums in a scrambled sequence. The drums were rotated to mix the capsules even further.

Five base incomes analyzed by the private, nonprofit foundation show that in the six-year span a 30 per cent increase in dollar pay resulted in a decrease in "real" pay.

Dr. Elsie Waters, senior research administrator for the New York-based organization, said economists and tax people "are considerably concerned by the trend. They are focusing on whether they will ever be able to control government spending. It seems to have run away."

The Tax Foundation based its calculations on a family of four, with one person working. A 30 per cent increase in a salary of $10,000 in 1966 would be worth $13,000 today.

How much is it worth in buying power now? Actually $156 less, according to the foundation, which deducted $745 as the increase in taxation in that period, and $2,411 deducted as the inflation bite. This represented a 1 1/2 per cent decline in purchasing power.

A raise in salary from $30,000 in 1966 to $36,000 in 1972, less the $4,598 inflation bite and the $1,722 increase in taxation, resulted in a net loss of $318 in buying power, the foundation said.

A raise in salary from $30,000 to $39,000 in 1972 minus the $3,244 increase in taxes and the $6,523 deducted for inflation, resulted in a net loss of $767, or 2 1/2 per cent less in purchasing power.

Dr. Waters blamed the loss of purchasing power on escalating inflation and rising state and Social Security taxes.

"State and local taxes are going up faster than federal taxes," she said. "From 1965 to 1970 these taxes rose by 12 per cent a year, which doubles them every six years. In that same period consumer spending was up 7 per cent, and the gross national product was up 7 per cent."

Dr. Waters said that 30 per cent was a "conservative" estimate of salary and wage increase since 1966.

"But the figures make it quite clear that you would have had to get increases of at least 35 per cent in that period to just stay even in terms of buying power," she said.

A breakdown on urban and rural population in Hempstead shows the rural population losing ground ... the 1970 census reveals the rural population down 6.8 per cent and the urban gained 4.9 per cent ... the breakdown shows 8,810 urban or 45.6 per cent and the rural population of 10,498 or 54.4 per cent ... during the 10 year period Hope gained 411 residents while the rural area lost 764 ... thus 353 persons were lost to the entire county completely.

Workers With Pay Hikes Have Lost Buying Power

By PETER ARNETT

NEW YORK (AP) — Wages and salaries have been so seriously depreciated by higher taxes and inflation that breadwinners who gained increases of up to 30 per cent over the past six years may have actually lost buying power, the Tax Foundation says.

Five base incomes analyzed by the private, nonprofit foundation show that in the six-year span a 30 per cent increase in dollar pay resulted in a decrease in "real" pay.

Number of Farms in County Drop

Hempstead County showed a total of 944 farms in the 1960 Census of Agriculture, according to figures released by the U.S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of the Census.

In the last previous Census of Agriculture (1954) the number of farms reported in the county was 1,390.

Of the county's total farms in 1960, 483 are reported as selling $2,500 or more of agricultural products in the year, as compared with 395 in 1954.

The report also shows average farm size in the county was 225.6 acres, and average value of these farms (land and buildings) was $41,881. Other figures from the report are:

1. Value of all farm products sold in 1960, $36,967,830; in 1954, $10,792,500.

2. Value of all crops sold in 1960, $1,632,963; in 1954, $1,098,908.

3. Value of all livestock, poultry, and their products sold in 1960, $35,334,744; in 1954, $9,693,592.

Reported for the first time in an agricultural census is information on the extent to which the corporate structure is being used by operators of farms from which agricultural products totaling $2,500 and over were sold. Including family farms using this type of business structure, 11 of the county's $2,500-and-over farms are incorporated.

Opening of Suez Canal Is Discussed by Egypt, Israel

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel has agreed to hold indirect talks with Egypt on the reopening of the Suez Canal, Foreign Minister Abba Eban said today.

The United States would be the go-between in the talks, but Washington has not yet approached the Egyptians. And Al Aham, the semi-official Cairo newspaper, reported Tuesday that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat had said he has "completely cut off all contacts with the U.S."

Eban said after a special two-hour meeting of the Israeli Cabinet that talks had been completed in Washington clarifying the U.S. government's role in the proposed negotiations.

The Israeli go-ahead was announced as Sadat prepared to visit Moscow for talks with Soviet leaders.

Israeli officials said the preliminary talks with the United States had been completed to Israel's satisfaction Tuesday in a series of telephone calls in Washington between Israeli Ambassador Yitzhak Rabin and Joseph Sisco, American assistant secretary of state for Middle Eastern affairs.

Second Day of Heavy Attacks by Bombers

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — U.S. fighter-bombers carried out a second day of heavy attacks inside North Vietnam, and a sharp upsurge in fighting was reported in the southern half of South Vietnam, military spokesmen said today.

The Saigon command claimed 129 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were killed in two actions.

A communique from Saigon headquarters said that in one action South Vietnamese bombers attacked a concentration of about 400 enemy troops in daylight Tuesday along the border with Cambodia 65 miles northwest of Saigon. Aerial observers claimed 90 of the enemy were killed, but this was not substantiated by independent sources. The other 39 enemy dead were slain in the U Minh forest, deep in the Mekong Delta, Saigon headquarters said.

The U.S. Command reported five new "protective reaction" strikes Tuesday and said four were made by fighter escorts after North Vietnamese anti-aircraft artillery batteries opened fire on four unarmed reconnaissance planes.

None of the American aircraft was hit, the command said. In all, more than a dozen U.S. planes were involved, including bombers attacking the Ho Chi Minh trail in neighboring Laos.

The command also reported two "protective reaction" strikes in North Vietnam Tuesday morning, making a record total of seven in one day. There were five on Monday for a two-day record of 12.

The air action during the past two days has been the heaviest since five days of "limited duration protective reaction" strikes over North Vietnam Dec. 26-30 in which U.S. bombers mounted more than 1,000 combat strikes.

One source said the air action is the result of the U.S. bombing campaign against the Ho Chi Minh trail.

U.S. officials say a major buildup has occurred in the region bordering South Vietnam's central highlands, and additional North Vietnamese troops are en route southward to join in an anticipated offensive.

While U.S. officials have been saying the major enemy blow is likely to hit South Vietnam's central highlands, sources said there is a substantial buildup of North Vietnamese supplies between Khe Sanh and the A Shau valley in the northern quarter of South Vietnam.

To counter the buildup, B-52 bombers launched their heaviest attacks since last November in the northern quarter between Khe Sanh and the A Shau. About a dozen of them dropped between 500 and 600 tons of bombs on storage sites and bunkers.

Equipment Reclaimed in Vietnam

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has reclaimed about $4.5 billion in military equipment from the Vietnam war and distributed it among U.S. forces elsewhere.

Barry J. Shillito, the Pentagon's logistics chief, said in an interview that 1.8 million tons of gear has been shipped back to military depots in the United States and to U.S. bases abroad.

After reconditioning and rebuilding, where necessary, the equipment goes to regular, National Guard and reserve units.

Although the $4.5 billion represents only a fraction of the estimated $120-billion cost of the Vietnam war to this country, it means something of a saving on new military hardware appropriations.

At the same time, Shillito reported, the United States has given nearly $1.3 billion in excess material and facilities to the South Vietnamese forces, Thailand, Laos and to South Korean military contingents in Vietnam.

A great bulk of this, more than $1.1 billion, went to the South Vietnamese.

In wrapping up the main American involvement in the Vietnam war, U.S. military authorities also have disposed of more than 448,000 tons of scrap—mostly metal, such as steel, aluminum and brass.

Although the United States gets only about seven cents on the dollar, based on original cost, more than $20 million has been realized from scrap sales—mostly to Japanese, Nationalist Chinese, Vietnamese and other Asian dealers.

Critics say that huge amounts of scrap left in the wake of war invite black markets and other kinds of profiteering.

Shillito acknowledged that "the sale of scrap everywhere presents possibilities to do something wrong."

Officials Meet at Marianna

MARIANNA, Ark. (AP) — Marianna school officials met Tuesday and drafted a letter urging all children who are boycotting classes to return.

About 3,000 black pupils have been boycotting classes since Jan. 13, when 120 of them demonstrated at Lee High School for not being allowed an observance of Martin Luther King's Birthday.

The letter urging pupils to return to class was signed by school personnel ranging from janitors to the superintendent.

Supt. H. C. Dial expressed concern about whether the situation could be solved locally. He said he felt a recommendation by the state Education Department last week urging that a task force representing the governor's office be gathered to mediate the controversy was possibly one of the ways out.

The governor's office indicated Tuesday that plans were under way to carry out the task force recommendation of the committee. A spokesman in the governor's office said however, that no specific action has yet been taken.

ANOTHER FIRST, maybe, for the ladies. Valerie Shoen of Redford Township, Mich., is the first woman to be nominated for admission to the U.S. Naval Academy. The University of Michigan coed, nominated by her congressman, is majoring in Russian with hopes of becoming a State Department translator.

China Breakthrough Is No Aid Economically

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The much-heralded breakthrough toward improved Chinese-American relations has proved nonexistent in economic and cultural terms.

According to officials at the State and Commerce departments, there has been no direct trade between the mainland and the United States since President Nixon's June 10 announcement doing away with most U.S. restrictions on commerce between the two nations.

One Commerce official said indirect trade through intermediary countries has totaled $4 million in Chinese goods imported into the United States by way of Hong Kong, Singapore and several European nations.

These goods generally have been food, some textiles, rugs, brush bristles and clothes.

Officials add there have been no U.S. exports to China even through third countries, but some subsidiaries of American firms overseas have shipped goods to the mainland.

No money figures are available for this trade, the officials said. But they added the Chinese have been buying small amounts of industrial chemicals and spare parts for planes they purchased from Pakistan and other countries.

Officials explain the small commercial interchange in terms of Chinese refusal to increase trade until the political situation is clarified, particularly American support of the Nationalist government on Taiwan.

Although the State Department says it hopes for exchanges in cultural, scientific and academic areas, there has been little movement in these fields.

A small number of American newsmen, scientists, doctors, businessmen and academic specialists have visited China. But the State Department says it has no idea how many Americans have gone or are going to the mainland since there is no requirement that they check with the government.

One of the Americans who did go to China recently was Dr. Paul Dudley White, the Boston heart specialist who spent two weeks on the mainland last summer with two other U.S. physicians.

White said this week he is trying to arrange a cooperative research program with Chinese doctors on acupuncture, a unique Chinese medical practice involving insertion of metal needles into patients both to treat illness and to anesthetize them for more-standard operations.

White said this research is still in the formative stage and is not connected with the U.S. government.

This absence of official U.S. connection in all areas of exchange is the common state of affairs, and a desirable one, according to State Department officials.

The scientists and the others contend they can operate more effectively if they are free of any connection with the government and cannot be charged with acting as agents of the administration.

Edwards New Governor of Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Rep. Edwin Edwards, a French-speaking Democrat who overcame the most serious Republican challenge in recent Louisiana history, will be the state's next governor.

Edwards, the 44-year-old son of a sharecropper, stamped his native south Louisiana with a campaign in French and polled a 57 per cent majority over Republican David Treen in Tuesday's election.

With only 56 precincts still to report, Edwards had 628,391 votes to Treen's 469,888.

It was the strongest showing by the GOP in a governor's race in nearly a century in this traditionally Democratic state.

For Edwards, the election climaxed victories in the Nov. 6 Democratic primary and a Dec. 18 runoff with state Sen. J. Bennett Johnston. Edwards defeated Johnston by less than one-half of one per cent in the narrowest election victory in Louisiana history.

The dapper, self-assured Edwards credited "Cajun Power" with playing a major role in his victory. The reference was to the heavy support he received in French-speaking south Louisiana.

Both Edwards and Treen had run reform campaigns, promising to clean up corruption and get rid of inefficiency in government. They conceded there was little difference between them on some major issues, and Gov. John McKeithen, limited by law to two four-year terms, refused to endorse either.

Ray Kinney
HONOLULU (AP) — Ray Kinney, 71, who entertained Hawaii and the nation for more than a half-century with his songs about the islands, died Monday. Kinney composed his most popular song, "Across the Sea," as a 15-year-old vaudeville act. He later sang with bandleader Harry Owens and made nearly 600 recordings.

the 40-item agenda Gov. Dale Bumpers has included in the call for a special session of the legislature that will start Monday.

The council also recommended Tuesday that the session pass a bill allowing the state to buy more government securities and, for the first time, invest in certificates of deposit of state banks.

The only bill on which the council took no action was a measure that would repeal a 1971 act requiring election officials to live in the precincts they serve. Chief advocates of repeal were Republican officials who complained the law compounds the problem of finding enough persons to serve.

The investments legislation, labeled a compromise worked out between Bumpers and Sen. Olen Hendrix of Springfield, a banker, substitutes for a bill Bumpers originally included in the call.

The new measure, like the original, raises from $32 million to $80 million the amount of state funds that can be invested in government securities although fiscal experts have predicted that the full investment authority will not be needed in the foreseeable future.

Written into the new bill was a requirement that investments could not reduce cash balances in the state treasury to below $2 million at any time. State Treasurer Nancy Hall has complained that because of investments made by the state Board of Finance the treasury did not have enough cash on hand sometimes to pay the state's bills.

HERBERT BURNS

An important message for people who prepare their own income tax returns.

Maybe you've been cheating yourself all these years.

Every year, between January and April, millions of people sit down to do battle with Uncle Sam. Some are "self styled" accountants. Others think they can save a few dollars doing it themselves—so why not?

The sad truth is, however, no matter what their reason was for starting, many of them end the same. On the short end.

You see, when it comes to income taxes, amateurs should depend on H & R Block. We have all the facilities to help you make "income tax time" a pleasant experience. To begin with, H & R Block now has over 6,000 conveniently located offices manned by thousands of specially trained personnel who are anxious to help you. They'll sit you down over a free cup of coffee and show you some things about your income tax that you might never have known existed. For example, do you know all about deductions for child care or casualty losses? And maybe you aren't aware that if your income increased last year, you may be able to save tax dollars by "income averaging."

Well, when it comes to income taxes, H & R Block is aware of just about everything because we're a company that eats, sleeps, and drinks tax returns 365 days a year.

Yes, maybe you can save a couple of bucks by doing your own return but it really may be costing you a lot more by not having your return done by H & R Block.

DON'T LET AN AMATEUR DO H&R BLOCK'S JOB.

Helen Bottel Helen Help Us!

Dear Helen:
My wife and I have separated several times. The fact is, our marriage was a mistake from the start—a have-to thing before we were 20.

Perhaps she sensed I never really loved her, and she took it out in nagging. I'm not blaming her or trying to excuse myself. We have both been wrong—and (I've always thought) wrong for each other.

My relatives were loud in their disapproval of her. They consider her bossy and demanding, also, a spendthrift—and always before they've cheered me on when we separated.

But this time it's different. I found a woman I can really love and I'm hoping to marry her. Therefore I've asked my wife for a divorce. Before, she seemed quite willing to divorce me, but now she's fighting it—begging for one more chance so that she can change.

And this is what throws me, Helen. My relatives have switched to HER side! They appear shocked that I could be "untrue." They spout "the sanctity of marriage."

If we've been incompatible for 10 years, is there any hope of our marriage getting better? Especially since I know my new love is right for me? Incidentally, I met her during one of our separations, and she is not trying to "steal me away." In fact, she urged me to go back to my wife and make one last try.

Should I? —PRESSURED BY RELATIVES

Dear PBR:
Are your relatives mostly female? This might account for the sudden change of attitude toward your marriage. When a wife is threatened by "the other woman," even "hating-sisters" close ranks against the intruder. Don't let guilt or imagined need for punishment cement you to a marriage you both know is wrong. If you can't return to your wife because you love her, then don't return at all. —H.

Dear Helen:

When our children were small, my wife was always one to promote family awareness, something I feel is often missing in homes today. The procedure is simple and it takes only a few minutes a day. It helped our family, and I'd like to pass it on to your readers:

1. Every evening, without fail, regardless of how trying the day, when you tuck the youngsters into bed, tell them something good about their brothers and sisters—and what a wonderful Mom they have. And mean it! Then, after a departing kiss, Mom will come in and repeat the messages, telling them the great things about each other and their Dad.

2. We say a simple grace at the dinner table but always end it with, "Thank you for this very good family."

Try it—you'll like it! —JOHN

Dear John:

Everyone should! Thanks for your good letter. —H.

Dear Helen:

A town in our state now allows the black community to display its flag in each school classroom with the stipulation that it be no larger nor of better quality than the Stars and Stripes. The court gave permission. Does this mean that we shall soon see our school cluttered with flags of every nation—to rival the U.N.? Won't this get out of hand? —M.S.

Dear M.:

"Might could" (as they say down in Texas, where five flags have waved at different times). But I doubt that other nationalities will make a test case of this, unless there's a sudden flare-up between blacks and whites. —H.

Minister Sues Carson

NEW YORK (AP) — The minister who married Tiny Tim and his Miss Viki before a nationwide television audience in 1969 is suing the producers of Johnny Carson's "Tonight" show for $500.

The Rev. William Glenesk, acting as his own attorney in Brooklyn Small Claims Court, filed the suit against Raritan Enterprises, Inc., producers of the late night talk show.

He said Producer Rudy Tellez promised him not only the usual $265 fee for his appearance, but also said he would pay Glenesk's $275 membership fee in the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists and invite him back for another $265 appearance on the show.

All he got, said the minister, was the original $265 fee for the one appearance on Dec. 17, 1969.

An attorney for Raritan said the only agreement Raritan had with Glenesk was the standard AFTRA contract signed before he performed the ceremony. But Grace Kennedy, a deaconess at Glenesk's Spencer Memorial Church in Brooklyn, testified to hearing the telephoned agreement between Glenesk and Tellez.

Civil Court Judge Dominick Corso reserved decision. Outside the courtroom the Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — For viewers who use their TV sets as an escape hatch, Tuesday is one of the most satisfactory nights of the week. One can start with "Mod Squad" and wind up three hours later with "Cannon" and never really come in contact with a day-by-day life.

The most interesting story of this Tuesday was "Hawaii Five-O." The fearless public eye, Steve McGarrett, was mixed up in the murder of a man employed by an eccentric, reclusive, germ-fearing billionaire.

The hour was not up to the program's usual level and it was complicated by gadgetry, but it did indicate how a fiction writer, given his head, could come far short of a real-life plot.

The show had a cool villain trying to take over the billion-dollar industrial empire. He even had some Swiss bank account dealings.

While truth is stranger, and often more exciting, than fiction, the Howard Hughes-type character in "Hawaii Five-O" was a coincidence because the program was shot before the current drama hit the front pages. It will be interesting to see what the fiction writers do with the current Hughes story—probably in next season's action shows.

"Mod Squad" this season seems trapped in its format. It was the first "relevant" show and is the sole survivor of the brief fad. Too often nowadays the undercover kids of the series are the only factors that keep the big city from blowing either from racial or drug tensions.

This week, another favorite theme got a working over: the war veteran, returning brutalized and embittered by his experiences and attempting to take law into his own hands. It may have worked once, but recently it has been overused and is a tired, predictable theme.

"Cannon" concerned some violent nonsense about a woman scientist engaged in hepatitis research in a prison and threatened by a gangster who wanted a prisoner pal included in the program.

The series, for all its battles, usually has pretty good scripts with as many curves and twists as a mountain road. It really doesn't need all those judo chops and automobile crashes to keep the viewers awake.

The networks probably will start announcing their schedules for next season in a couple of weeks. ABC has already announced a Julie Andrews series and, now, another, called "The Streets of San Francisco." This will be an hour action show centering around an older detective, played by Karl Malden, and a younger one, still uncast. Quinn Martin of "The FBI" and CBS's "O'Hara—U.S. Treasury," will produce the series.

Guys Named 'Who' Up for Grabs in Draft

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of guys named "Who?" are up for grabs today as the National Football League completes its 1972 collegiate draft from a field generally considered mediocre by recent standards.

One of the few big names available when Monday's proceedings began was Walt Patulski and, as expected, Notre Dame's enormous defensive end was the No. 1 selection, going to the Buffalo Bills.

There were other stars too—Heisman Trophy winning quarterback Pat Sullivan of Auburn and running back Ed Marinaro of Cornell, to name two.

But in a field of collegiate candidates devoid of superstars, such as last year's Jim Plunkett and Archie Manning or 1970's Steve Owens and Terry Bradshaw, many of Saturday's heroes had to wait a surprisingly long time before being chosen.

Sullivan, for example, didn't even go in the first round. Atlanta finally selected him as the 14th pick in the second round—after 39 other players had been called.

Marinaro also had to wait for the second round, being chosen 24th by Minnesota.

"I'm a little surprised," Sullivan said from Auburn when told all 26 teams had bypassed him in the first round, then quickly added, "and very happy."

Marinaro expressed disappointment at not being a first-round choice "but if I have to be picked in the second round, well, I feel good to be with a contender," he said of the Vikings, Central Division champions in the National Conference the past four years.

Patulski, a 6-foot-6, 260-pound behemoth, was, of course, delighted with being No. 1 among some 442 players who will eventually be drafted.

What kind of contract would he be seeking from Buffalo?

"A big one!" he grinned. Just how big he said he would leave to his attorney, Bob Woolf, who said he was thinking along the lines of the four-year, $300,000 pact signed four years ago by O.J. Simpson when he was the Bills' No. 1 choice.

No. 2 on Monday was another defensive end, Sherman White of California, who was chosen by the Cincinnati Bengals.

Another lineman, offensive tackle Lionel Antoine of Southern Illinois, was third to go as the Chicago Bears grabbed him on their first-round pick acquired from the New York Giants.

St. Louis was the first club to go for offensive backfield talent and the Cardinals came away with Robert Moore, a running back and wide receiver from Oregon.

Rounding out the first-round selections were Houston tight end Riley Odums to Denver, Stanford defensive end Greg Sampson to Houston, San Diego State defensive back Willie Buchanan and Nebraska quarterback Jerry Tagge to Green Bay, Georgia guard Royce Smith to New Orleans, Jackson State wide receiver Jerome Barkum and Michigan linebacker Mike Taylor to the New York Jets, Stanford linebacker Jeff Siemon to Minnesota, Iowa State defensive back Craig Clemons to Chicago, Penn State running back Franco Harris to Pittsburgh, Florida quarterback John Reaves to Philadelphia, Notre Dame defensive back Clarence Ellis to Atlanta, Colorado defensive end Herb Orvis to Detroit, Texas A&I defensive back Eldridge Small and Nebraska defensive end Larry Jacobson to the New York Giants, Michigan defensive back Tom Darden to Cleveland, Auburn wide receiver Terry Beasley to San Francisco, Villanova wide receiver Mike Siani to Oakland, Oregon tackle Tom Drougas to Baltimore, Nebraska running back Jeff Kinney to Kansas City, Notre Dame defensive tackle Mike Kadish to Miami and Boston College running back Bill Thomas to Dallas.

Linemen dominated the first round with nine drafted including the first three—Patulski, White and Antoine—and accounted for 82 of the 162 players chosen in Monday's seven rounds.

And the majority of the attention was paid to defensive players as 97 of them were picked—34 safeties and cornerbacks, 25 linebackers, 23 ends, 11 tackles and four kicking specialists. Of the 65 offensive players taken, 28 were running backs, with 16 wide receivers, 13 tackles, 13 guards, six tight ends, five quarterbacks and four centers.

The biggest haul of the day was made by New Orleans, which came away with 13 players in the seven rounds, followed by Atlanta with 11 and Dallas and Oakland with 10 apiece.

On the other end of the scale was Washington. The Redskins with Coach George Allen swapping selections last year for the veterans who made the club a title contender, came away with nothing.

No Favorite in Hawaii

HONOLULU (AP) —There was no clear-cut favorite—but a potential villain—in the extremely strong field arrayed for the $200,000 Hawaiian Open golf tournament.

The 72-hole test begins Thursday with Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Billy Casper and George Archer heading probably the most talented field of the season.

But the man getting most of the conversation is that oft-maligned individual, the weatherman.

"I was here for six days before I saw the sun," said one PGA official who came to the islands a week early.

A couple of days ago the temperature hit a nighttime low of 53, just one degree off the record.

A cold front, with rain, was hanging just north of the islands and weather conditions—no long range forecasts are made—depended entirely on the direction of the winds.

The 144 man field contained all but one of the top 16 money winners from last season. That's Gary Player, the little South African who hasn't yet begun his American campaign.

All the rest of the great names are on hand with the towering Archer one of the top choices for the $40,000 first prize.

In three starts this season the streaking Archer has won once, lost in a playoff once and tied for sixth. He's the leading money winner with more than $48,000. Archer was knocked out of last week's Andy Williams-San Diego Open by a case of the flu.

Palmer is making only his second start of the season. Nicklaus had his winning string snapped when he ran into problems last week and Trevino has had some putting problems. This is the first time this season all three have played in the same tournament.

Lowery Sinks Razorbacks

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) —Greg Lowery hit a 10-foot jump shot with eight seconds left to ice the game as Texas Tech defeated Arkansas 76-73 in a southwest conference basketball game Tuesday night.

Texas Tech led most of the game, but Arkansas closed within one point with 57 seconds left. However, Tech put down the Razorback rally and the Porks missed several scoring opportunities in the closing seconds.

Lowery, who went into the game as the SWC scoring leader with an average of 28.1 points per game, led all scorers with 26 points.

Witte Back, Ohio State Sinks Iowa

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer
Luke Witte's name was announced for the starting lineup and the cheers of 13,000 rolled down from the stratosphere of the Ohio State gym.

It was his first appearance in Buckeye basketball togs since his injury in that wild brawl with Minnesota.

"I wondered if Luke was going to be skittish after his concussion," said Ohio State Coach Fred Taylor.

Not Tuesday night, anyway. Witte's return to action was triumphant with a 17-point, 14-rebound performance that helped ninth-ranked Ohio State sink Iowa 82-77.

"I still have a headache, but the doctor said I would," said the 7-foot center, who was hospitalized after the free-for-all during the Minnesota game last week. "The vision's better. I'm just good and tired now."

Hot Hand Luke's performance, along with Allan Hornyak's clutch shooting, moved Ohio State into a three-way tie with Minnesota and Michigan in the zany Big Ten race.

Missouri, the nation's No. 15 team, whipped Kansas 64-60; Ohio smashed Virginia Military Institute 98-60; Drake topped West Texas State 74-68; Davidson downed East Carolina 92-70; Nebraska nipped Kansas State 61-60; Southern Methodist defeated Texas 85-80; Baylor turned back Texas Christian 93-77; Texas A&M stopped Rice 80-70 and No. 5 Long Beach State trounced UCal-Irvine 83-62. In other games Tuesday night.

Iowa, which plays Minnesota and Ohio State two times each in a two-week period, was down by 13 points a few times in the second half.

The Hawkeyes, led by Kevin Kinnert and Rick Williams, came back and went ahead by three points late in the second half before Hornyak took over. The Ohio State guard scored nine points in the last 2½ minutes and finished with 37 points, matching his career high.

Kinnert finished with 25 points and Williams rifled in 23. Missouri fought off inspired Kansas before pulling out a close one on John Brown's shooting. Brown was in foul trouble the first half but scored 13 of his 19 points in the last 20 minutes.

It was Brown's hook shot from 10 feet with 4:13 left that helped the Tigers finally chase down the Jayhawks at 54-all. Bud Stallworth, who had a game-high 29 points, then put Kansas ahead with a field goal.

But Brown hit a jump shot and Mike Jeffries worked free for a layup to put Missouri on top 58-56 with 2:59 to play. Kansas never caught up.

Ohio rolled over VMI after Coach Jim Snyder shook up his starting lineup. Denny Rusch, a 6-foot-8 sophomore who usually doesn't start, scored 15 points to share scoring honors with senior guard Todd Lalich, who spent the early part of the game on the bench. Bill Brown, another new starter, scored 13.

Cleo Kilgore scored 18 points and Dennis Bell had 15 as Drake survived a late West Texas State comeback. Steve Davidson's 19 points topped the losers.

Davidson took over first place in the Southern Conference with its victory over East Carolina. Forward Joe Sutter scored a career-high 27 points and had 10 rebounds for Davidson, which won its sixth straight game.

Brundage Called a Dictator

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) —

"Brundage is a dictator—more than anyone in the world," a bitter Karl Schranz said Wednesday. "It is like being behind the Iron Curtain—if you say what they don't like, they put you in jail."

It was three hours after a dramatic morning press conference at which the 33-year-old Austrian ski ace, booted out of the 11th Winter Olympic Games on charges of professionalism, had made an appeal to his teammates not to go through with a sympathy walkout. They agreed to stay.

Coatless, his gold shirt open at the throat, Schranz relaxed in the fifth floor hotel suite of Franz Kneissl, owner of the firm whose advertisements have used the athlete's name and picture.

He unleashed a vitriolic attack on Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, and the system that made his disqualification possible.

"Mr. Brundage is an American," he said. "America always has been a symbol to the world for freedom and democracy. Yet Mr. Brundage is the worst kind of tyrant."

"He is like a Roman emperor in the old days who turned thumbs down on gladiators. He sits in his ivory tower and says, 'You must go' or 'You may stay.' It is not democracy. It is one-man rule."

Brundage was not immediately available for comment. On the subject Tuesday, the 84-year-old IOC executive called the Austrian "the most blatant and most verbose offender."

Schranz, the former world Alpine champion and a three-time Olympian, was disqualified Monday for allowing his name and picture to be used in commercial advertising.

He never denied it, but he said:

"If I am guilty, every athlete in the Olympics is guilty."

Schranz said he did not blame America—but only Brundage—for what had befallen him.

"Today, when I returned to the Olympic Village an American Nordic skier—I don't know his name—came up to me and said, 'I want to apologize for Brundage—he does not represent the thinking of America.'"

The handsome Austrian bachelor said since his expulsion he had received wires from both powerful and plain people.

Schranz said he planned to move out of the Olympic Village, under orders of the IOC, early Thursday, and take up temporary residence with his friend and employer, Kneissl.

He said he planned to remain through Sunday, attending some of the early Olympic events.

"Then I shall go home and think," he added. "I do not know what my future plans will be."

Hit With Ill Feeling, Olympics Open Thursday

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) —

The 11th Winter Olympics, rocked by ill feeling over the expulsion of Austrian ski star Karl Schranz, opens Thursday with a 21-gun salute for Emperor Hirohito and all the traditional color and ceremony.

No Olympic meet has ever opened in such an air of bitterness. A walk-out by the entire Austrian ski team was narrowly averted after Schranz had been banned from the Games because he sold his name and photograph for advertising.

But it will be all pomp and glitter when the competitors from 35 nations march into the Makomanai speed skating rink for the opening ceremony. Nobody expects the smallest sign of ill feeling to mar the spectacle.

Snow showers and sunshine are alternating over the white mountain landscape around Sapporo. Officials are hoping it will be the sun's turn when the Games are opened at 11 a.m., local time (9 p.m., EST).

The guns will boom out when the Emperor arrives at the stadium. He traveled from Tokyo Tuesday and is staying in downtown Sapporo.

The Texas Aggies and Texas Tech Red Raiders captured crucial victories on the road Tuesday night to join Southern Methodist in a three-way knot for the Southwest Conference basketball lead.

It had been a four-way tie before SMU outgunned Texas 85-80 before a sellout house of 9,047 fans at Moody Coliseum.

Texas Tech withstood a late Arkansas rally to put down the Razorbacks 76-73 at Fayetteville while the Aggies tripped Rice 80-70 in Houston. In the only other SWC game, Baylor damaged defending champion Texas Christian's title hopes with a 93-77 victory at Waco.

Texas A&M, SMU, and Texas Tech each own 4-1 SWC records while the Longhorns are in second place all alone at 3-2.

Baylor and TCU are each 2-3, Arkansas is 1-4 and Rice is 0-5.

Tech and Texas A&M meet Saturday night in a showdown match at College Station while SMU hosts Baylor in the 4 p.m. television game. Rice is at Arkansas and Texas is at TCU in the other games.

Arkansas rallied to within one point with 57 seconds left before Tech put the game out of reach on a 10-foot jump shot

Wants to Play With the Boys

PUTNEY, Vt. (AP) — Karen

Wise, 20, believed to be the first coed to play previously male collegiate basketball, said Tuesday she would seek the aid of the American Civil Liberties Union to stay on the varsity squad at Windham College.

During two games, Karen was unable to score. But, her play earned her a letter from the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference, which told her she was ineligible to participate in sanctioned games.

"I've thought it over," she said, "the only thing to do is to fight."

Windham College was behind her.

Dr. Eugene C. Winslow, college president, said he has written a letter to the chairman of the committee to have the male-only clause stricken from the conference rules.

"In my opinion, this rule is inconsistent with the present movement in this country, which seeks to end discrimination against women," said the college president.

Winslow said he believed the ECAC rule to be contradictory to federal legislation calling for equal opportunity in educational facilities.

He said the college would continue its policy of allowing Karen to remain on the varsity squad. Each opponent would be called in advance of the games, Winslow said. If a team desired not to play against Karen, she would refrain from joining in the game.

But, he said, if the opposition did not object, Karen would play.

by Greg Lowery with eight seconds left. Lowery finished the night with 26 points.

Martin Terry of the Razorbacks, who had been averaging 25 points a game, got in foul trouble and finished with only six. Dennis White paced Arkansas with 17 points.

Wayne Howard's 23 points paced the Aggies to the victory over the hapless Owls.

The fancy ball handling of Mario Brown kept the Owls at bay as they rallied in the second half.

Ruben Triplett scored 24 points to spur the Mustangs over Texas.

The Longhorns' Larry Robinson was the top point man of the night with 33, including 20 in the second half before he fouled out.

Again, the Mustangs made their three-guard offense click. Zane Thiel and Larry Delsell were particularly deadly with 12 assists and 32 points between them.

Roy Thomas canned 26 points as Baylor bumped TCU.

Advertising Is Banned

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) —

The International Ski Federation (FIS) warned Nordic skiers Wednesday that any of them posing with their skis and displaying trademarks after their races in the Winter Olympics will be disqualified.

Fred Roessner, FIS delegate from Austria, said the federation also has decided to test the three medal winners and three other contestants chosen at random for doping after each race.

The rule on display of trademarks is in compliance with the International Olympic Committee's new rule 26, which prohibits contestants from participating in advertising. However, Roessner did not mention the rule specifically in warning the 60 skiers from 19 nations entered in the cross country events.

Roessner, a member of the FIS cross country committee and FIS' technical inspector of the Olympic courses, said the doping tests will be made at the ski stadium within half an hour after each Nordic race.

Any skiers failing to appear for the test will automatically be disqualified, he said.

Judge Orders Probation Lifted

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge has ordered the National Collegiate Athletic Association to lift the probation it imposed on the University of California last August for allegedly violating the NCAA's controversial 1.6 rule.

Judge Albert C. Wollenberg held Tuesday the NCAA acted unconstitutionally — denying equal protection and due process—when it applied the rule to Isaac Curtis and Larry Brumsey, Cal athletes who brought the suit last fall.

As freshmen three years ago Curtis and Brumsey were not given an NCAA-required examination designed to show they were capable of maintaining college grades at a 1.6, or C-minus level.

The indefinite probation was imposed on Cal because it ignored NCAA pressure and let Curtis, a track star and runner-back, and Brumsey, a tight end play during the last

Achieving Fame the Hard Way

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

NEW ORLEANS, La. — (NEA) — Terry Daniels has one big plus from the receding lumps on the side of his jaw.

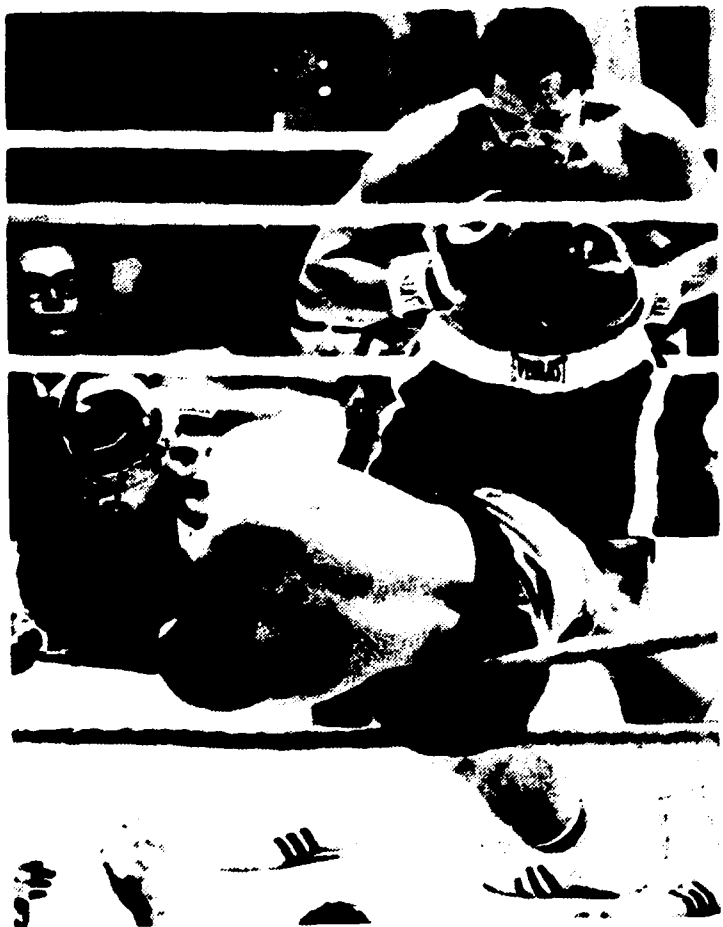

No matter where he lives—Willoughby, Ohio; Dallas or maybe even Mesquite — Terry'll always be known around his neighborhood as the guy who fought for the heavy weight championship of the world.

For 10 minutes and 47 seconds it was a painful experience, but now there's almost a masochistic joy from the fact of survival, not to mention 35,000 freshly deposited dollar bills in the bank. Terry Daniels is privileged to information that only a handful of men in the world are qualified to reveal—what it's like to face the indomitable fists of Joe Frazier. And still come out with only a scratch on his cheek and a shiny nose which already showed previous signs of having been bashed a few times.

Maybe it doesn't sound like much, being singled out for the rest of his life as a guy who was stopped by Joe Frazier, but in most of us there is a mania for identity. In a little town in New Jersey there's a guy, thin man who rides the bus to work like every other New York commuter, who labors in the anonymity of the advertising account executive world. But in town he is known as the kid who played David Copperfield with W. C. Fields and he still is Freddie, not Fred, Bartholomew.

You meet an old-time football player like Dante Magnani at Boots Erb's place in Oakland, and he's tickled pink someone remembers him. Pete Rademacher travels the country capitalizing on the brief minutes he spent 15 years ago in a ring with Floyd Patterson—an amateur from the Olympics taking on the heavyweight champ of the world.

So if they ever hold a championship fight near the town where Terry will be living 10, 20 or 25 years from now, he can always come into the ring for a bow—surely grayer, probably paunchier but with a renewed glow in his eyes for having been there once before.

TERRY DANIELS, above, will have plenty of time to reflect on the perverse kind of moment of glory he achieved when heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, who has Daniels on the ropes at left, demolished him by a technical knockout in four rounds. Even if he never again does anything worthy of public attention, he'll always be known as the man who once fought for the championship.

And if they want to know — the curious at ringside — what it was like to fight the great Joe Frazier, Terry can refresh himself by clipping this out and occasionally reviewing the words. They came from his mouth in an articulate babble while the emotional trauma of having absorbed a beating on the one celebrated occasion of his young life still possessed him.

"Every time I went down," he said, and he went down to the canvas four thudding times in all, "it was involuntary. I was incredibly tired after awhile. I just couldn't believe I couldn't speed up my punches."

"It happened so fast, it was the fourth round before I blinked my eyes. I remember in my corner hearing the announcer, '... now introducing the heavyweight champion of the world.' And saying to myself, 'My God, here I am in the same ring with the heavyweight champion.'"

"Then the referee was saying to me (after a knockdown), 'You all right? You all right?'

"While we were fighting I saw it was futile to try to dance back from him. I don't move that well. I'm just as susceptible to that left hook 10 feet away as I am in close. He's that quick. So I stayed close and really felt, 'He's gonna get hit.'

"I hit him a couple of good shots so he wouldn't throw those horrendous hooks. There was one right uppercut. I felt it up to here," and Terry pointed to his elbow. "He blinked and came back in at me within about two seconds."

"Every punch, I could tell it was coming. But the first ones took a toll out of me. In the fourth (and last) round he didn't hit me very hard. I said to myself, 'Man, my knees must be gone.' Then I remembered a saying from my football days, in the SMU dressing room: 'The only two times a man is beaten is when he dies or when he gives up.'"

"I don't even know the guy, but off the attitude he has in the ring, he's a good sportsman. I grazed him over the eye with an open thumb once and asked him if he was O.K. He said, 'Yeah, I'm all right.' And he came back at me."

Well, it wasn't much of a fight Terry Daniels put up, looking back at it with fresh memory, and it won't get better 20 years from now, because Terry Daniels wasn't really equipped to fight Joe Frazier.

But he did have his dreams of glory. And the long shot at trying to realize them. When in the dressing room a reporter asked Daniels, in defeat, about those dreams, he turned around and cried. Silently.

Tells Intent and Attitude

NEW YORK (AP) — "I don't look at myself as a Dick destructive type knocking heads off," said Walt Patulski. "I think of myself as a spider bringing the opponent into the web."

With that statement of his intent and attitude, Patulski introduced himself Tuesday after he was made the No. 1 selection by the Buffalo Bills at the National Football League draft—a behemoth 6-foot-6, 260 pounder who doesn't have the killer instinct and doesn't want it either.

"My personal approach to the game is to use my long arms and good reach," Patulski explained. "I don't like to hit anyone harder than necessary to tackle them. I don't want to put them out of the game. I just want to tackle a guy. The rest of it doesn't interest me."

"I'm not a football nut. There are guys who are fanatics about football, just love the game. I'm more realistic about, the way I was at Notre Dame. It was a business there for me; I was working my way through college. I spent 50 hours a week at it. It was my job."

A high school fullback who admits he still has the "soul of a running back," Patulski played it without the killer instinct well enough to make 74 tackles, break up six passes and recover a fumble his senior year for the Fighting Irish.

That convinced the Bills he was the No. 1 player available in the draft—and has convinced his attorney, Bob Woolf, that he's worth every much as O.J. Simpson was to the Bills four years ago.

The Bills reportedly signed Simpson, their No. 1 draft choice at the time, for a four-year contract worth $300,000—a figure Woolf said he won't argue with.

"I'd like to think in terms of the same thing as O.J. because Patulski is as valuable to the team in his position as O.J. is in his," said Woolf, who also is representing two other first-rounders and last year negotiated the contract quarterback Jim Plunkett signed with New England.

Cinderella Tennis Girl

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Chris Evert wowed the tennis crowd at Forest Hills last year as a "Cinderella" 16-year-old. Tuesday, 14-year-old sister Jeannie upset seasoned pro Rosemary Casals as the littlest Evert made her big time tennis debut.

"In the end, I tried not to let the score come into my head," said the 5-foot, 90-pound brunette, whose eyes sparkled with tears of joy after the 4-6, 6-3, 6-3 victory over Miss Casals in the $25,000 Women's International Tennis Tournament.

The tiny amateur said that by the second set she realized she had a chance of winning, "but I didn't think I was going to win until it was over."

Miss Casals, ranked fifth in the world and second in the United States, kept the National 14-and-under champion hopping in the first set.

The 23-year-old veteran of seven years of international tennis would drop a shot near the net, then lob Jeannie's return shot out of the teenager's reach.

By the second set, Jeannie had turned the tables, forcing the older star to play deeper and turning her drop-and-lob strategy against her.

"I tried to keep her deep so she couldn't do it," Jeannie said. "I didn't want her to sneer me. I wanted to give her a good match and win a few games."

Older sister Chris, who recently turned 17, set the tennis world on its ear last season with a string of victories that ended when she was beaten by Billie Jean King in the semi-finals of the Forest Hills classic.

Asked if she had ever played anyone of this caliber before, Jeannie answered, "Only Rosemary." There was a pause before she added, "... and Chris."

Right Back on Losing Streak

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Taking into consideration the heavy schedule and constant traveling encountered by National Basketball Association teams, Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch said, "You don't have much time to savor a victory, but this one was ridiculous."

Fitch's reference was to the 3:04 he had to "savor a victory" Tuesday night.

The Cavaliers had beaten Buffalo 104-99 in a regularly scheduled game, then took a three-minute break and played the final four seconds of a game protested on Dec. 3. Cleveland failed to score in those four seconds and lost 91-90.

"We're back on a losing streak even before we leave the building," quipped Fitch.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Milwaukee whipped Golden State 108-97, Seattle beat Chicago 121-103, New York downed Detroit 115-106, Boston topped Baltimore 115-108, and Phoenix took Portland 129-117.

In the Buffalo-Cleveland regulation game, rookie Austin Carr fired in 12 of his 19 points in the third quarter, leading the Cavaliers to victory. His jumper from the left side broke a 69-69 deadlock and triggered a decisive eight-point spurt. Buffalo's Walt Hazzard took game scoring honors with 26 points.

Then, after the brief break, the teams resumed play. Cleveland's Rick Roberson took the ball out at mid-court and tossed it to Bobby Smith, whose 35-foot shot bounced off the rim to Buffalo's Elmore Smith as the game ended.

Cleveland had filed a protest after the original game, claiming it should have been given the ball at mid-court rather than under its basket after Hazzard had sank a technical foul with four seconds left. NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy upheld the protest.

Oscar Robertson's 33 points and Kareem Jabbar's 21 helped Milwaukee beat Golden State for the first time this season and hand the Warriors only their second loss in 17 games. Jeff Mullins led the Warriors with 23 points before injuring his left ankle in the fourth quarter.

Spencer Haywood and Don Smith combined for 16 points in the fourth quarter, leading Seattle's victory over Chicago. Haywood finished as the game's top scorer with 27 points.

Bill Bradley's season high of 29 points, Dave DeBusschere's 22 and Jerry Lucas' 20 carried the Knicks past Detroit despite 40 points and 24 rebounds by the Pistons' Bob Lanier. The loss was the Pistons' sixth straight and ninth in 10 games.

Boston rallied from a 106-102 deficit with 4:14 left by outscoring Baltimore 13-2. Dave Cowens paced the Celtics with 32 points and 21 rebounds.

Red Wings Are Doing Gunning

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A year ago, Detroit General Manager Ned Harkness was trying to wheel and deal his Red Wings into National Hockey League playoff contention—and coming under the gun for his efforts.

Now, however, it's the Red Wings who are doing the gunning. And the players who found themselves mentioned in last season's criticism of Harkness, like Red Berenson and Mickey Redmond, are the ones pulling the trigger.

"A lot of people were shooting guys down like Berenson and Redmond," Harkness said Tuesday night after the Wings whipped the tumbling Toronto Maple Leafs 4-0. "But it looks now as if we've proved we picked the right guys."

Berenson, picked up in the trade that sent Garry Unger to St. Louis, rifled home a pair of goals in a six-second span and Redmond, acquired in the swap that sent Frank Mahovlich to Montreal, scored his 28th goal of the season in the Detroit victory.

In the night's only other NHL game, Montreal turned back St. Louis 3-1 and Los Angeles stunned Chicago 7-4.

Pockets of Resistance in Bangladesh Bring Fights

By DENNIS NEELD
Associated Press Writer
Dacca (AP) — A Bangladeshi military spokesman said today the new nation's security forces are fighting "well equipped, organized pockets of Pakistani troops" hiding out among 250,000 Bengalis in the Dacca suburb of Mirpur.

He put Bangladesh army casualties during a five-day-old operation in Mirpur at "maybe more than 100."

The army moved into the suburb last weekend following clashes between the Bengalis, a minority community in Bangladesh, and the majority Bengalis.

At least 46 Bengalis are reported to have been killed, and foreign newsmen who visited Mirpur Tuesday saw 22 being buried in a communal grave. They saw no evidence, however, of pockets of resistance in the sections they were permitted to enter.

An indefinite curfew is still enforced in Mirpur, which is cordoned off from the rest of the capital.

The spokesman claimed that as troops first went into Mirpur in small groups Sunday to enforce the curfew, they came under "heavy, well-sited automatic machine-gun and bazooka fire."

"This was not stray shooting," he said. "It was from well equipped, organized pockets of resistance by elements of the Pakistan army which sought refuge in Mirpur rather than surrender Dec. 16," the day the war ended in Bangladesh.

The spokesman claimed that Bangladesh troops were overwhelmed and many were "dragged away, their throats cut and bodies mutilated."

"There are a lot of bodies yet to be found," said the spokesman. "Casualties are in the region of three figures—maybe more than 100."

There was no means, however, of verifying the spokesman's figures, and independent eyewitnesses said they had seen the bodies of only two soldiers.

Sanatorium for Retarded

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A proposal to use the Booneville Tuberculosis Sanatorium to prepare mentally retarded adults for living in their communities was advanced Tuesday by Dr. Roger Bost, director of the state Department of Social and Rehabilitative Services.

Bost said the administration of Gov. Dale Bumpers would present the program to the special legislative session beginning Monday. He outlined the proposal for the first time at a meeting of the Arkansas Legislative Council.

Bost said the sanatorium would provide an "intermediate" step for adult mentally retarded between institutional care at the Arkansas Children's Colony and care in their communities. After a period of training at Booneville, they would be sent into their communities and be served by an expanded community-based program Bumpers has asked the legislature to authorize.

Under the intermediate program envisioned by Bost, the sanatorium would provide a "living experience" for mentally retarded who can be returned to their communities. Parents would be brought to Booneville to train for caring for them.

The council endorsed the idea in principle, but called for Bost to draw up a specific proposal to be submitted to the Legislative Joint Budget Committee prior to special session consideration.

Bost said most of the men-

Democrats District Arkansas Counties

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Democratic State Committee Tuesday approved division of the state's 75 counties into 22 districts for selection of national convention delegates.

If national convention delegates from Arkansas are chosen by popular election, one delegate would be selected from each district.

If the party decides to name delegates at a state party convention or caucus, however, the districts apparently could be ignored and delegates selection be done on a basis other than a geographical one.

Bill Penix of Jonesboro, who headed the committee that devised the districts, said the plan had been approved by the national committee.

Penix added that the committee "gave no thought to anyone's personal political feelings" in making up the districts.

The plan was approved with one dissenting vote—from Independence County. A spokesman for that county said she felt that Independence belonged with more northern counties than with such counties as Faulkner and Conway, which are in a district with Independence County.

The districts in the plan:

- 1.—Clay, Greene, Craighead.
- 2.—Mississippi N Pointsett
- 3.—Cross, Crittenden, St. Francis.
- 4.—Lee, Phillips, Arkansas.
- 5.—Desha, Drew, Bradley, Calhoun, Ouachita.
- 6.—Chicot, Ashley, Union.
- 7.—Nevada, Columbia, Lafayette, Miller, Little River.
- 8.—Sebastian, Scott.
- 9.—Saline, Hot Spring, Dallas, Grant, Cleveland, 710.—Jefferson, Lincoln.

McClard Goes to San Diego

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Arkansas football players were taken Tuesday in the third round of the professional football draft.

Bill McClard, the NCAA's career leader for scoring by kicking, was drafted by the San Diego Chargers, and Bill Phillips, a linebacker at Arkansas State University, was taken by Denver.

McClard will be joining former Razorback teammate Chuck Discus, who was drafted last year by the Chargers.

McClard holds the NCAA record for the longest field goal—60 yards.

tally retarded who would be treated at Booneville would come from the three children colony units. He has said that almost 50 per cent of the 1,350 colony residents are 18 years old or older, category of mentally retarded who would be sent to the sanatorium.

Bost said the cost would be $200,000 in the remainder of this fiscal year and $1.2 million in the next fiscal year, but that he did not think the program could be implemented before the year beginning July 1.

Poll Picks Nixon by Slim Margin

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer
A national opinion poll says if an election were held today President Nixon would be re-elected by a narrow margin.

Sindlinger Co. Inc. of Swarthmore, Pa., said it polled 954 men and 1,035 women across the country after Nixon's Jan. 25 disclosure of his latest peace initiatives.

Nearly two-thirds of those interviewed said they believed the President was doing his best to end the war, and 50.6 per cent said they would vote to re-elect him now. Only 16.7 per cent said they opposed Nixon; 24.9 per cent were undecided, and 7.7 per cent said they did not vote.

Albert Sindlinger, president of the polling firm, said the figures released Tuesday contrast with a similar poll last July that showed only 26.7 per cent favored re-election of the President.

When put up against a full field of possible contenders, Nixon polled 48.6 per cent with Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine leading Democratic hopefuls with 13.9 per cent, followed by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, 7.1 per cent; Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, 7 per cent; and Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama and Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York, 2.4 per cent each. Other candidates and potential candidates received only a fraction of 1 per cent each.

Meanwhile, Sen. Kennedy's office said the Massachusetts Democrat would withdraw his name from the April 4 Wisconsin presidential primary ballot.

Kennedy, who insists he is not a candidate, was among 13 Democrats and three Republicans whose names were placed on the ballot by a bipartisan nominating committee.

In addition to Kennedy, Democratic candidates named in Wisconsin are: Muskie, Humphrey, Wallace, Lindsay, Sens. George McGovern of South Dakota, Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Vance Hartke of Indiana, former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles and Reps. Shirley Chisholm of New York, Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas and Patsy Mink of Hawaii.

Mills, though often mentioned as a possible contender, has not announced his candidacy, and Mrs. Mink's supporters have taken steps to enter her in the Oregon primary, although she has not formally declared her candidacy.

Nixon and his challengers, Reps. Paul N. McCloskey Jr. of California and John M. Ashbrook of Ohio, are listed on the GOP ballot.

Summit Meet on Babies

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A summit meeting of baby doctors and two federal agencies was called today to discuss outbreaks of infections in several hospital nurseries after a government warning against bathing infants with germ-fighting hexachlorophene.

The National Center for Disease Control (NCDC) in Atlanta said it has received reports of staphylococcal skin infections in at least 20 hospital nurseries since a nationwide survey began Jan. 19.

There was no immediate indication whether the infections were linked to cutting back on the use of hexachlorophene to bathe babies and to scrub hands of doctors and nurses who handle the babies.

Detailed data were to be presented by Dr. David J. Sencer, NCDC director, at the meeting with Dr. Charles C. Edwards, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, and members of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

Staph infections range from pimples to impetigo and in rare instances prove fatal if the bacteria spread to the bloodstream.

The FDA publicly warned 600,000 doctors, hospitals, nurses and other health professionals last Dec. 6 that hexachlorophene should not be used for total body bathing, because it can be absorbed into the bloodstream of babies and burn patients and causes brain damage in laboratory animals.

The warning was followed Jan. 5 by a four-point FDA proposal designed to reduce public exposure to the chemical through antibacterial cleansers, soaps, cosmetics and other products.

Dr. Stanley L. Harrison, secretary of the American Academy of Pediatrics, said in an interview that many hospitals appear to have misunderstood the warning and failed to note the emphasis on the need "for scrupulous hand washing just before entering the nursery as well as just before and after handling each infant."

"We've heard that many hospital administrators took hexachlorophene out of nurseries, saying, 'it's dangerous, don't use it,'" Harrison said.

"That's ridiculous," he said. "I'm sure hand-washing techniques in many nurseries suffered from this. Our intent was to promote better care of attendants' hands."

If a staph-infection outbreak occurs, he said, "the physicians in charge have every right to prescribe hexachlorophene bathing for babies if it seems justified in each individual case. Each physician has to weigh the risk versus the benefit."

The Yale-New Haven Hospital in Connecticut resumed using hexachlorophene to a limited extent this week after it discovered that all 15 babies in one nursery section had staph germs, although only two had infections. The hospital had stopped using the germ fighter about six weeks ago.

Roosevelt Raceway at Westbury, N.Y., drew 3,229,243 fans for 124-nights of harness racing in 1964.

On Friday, January 28, the Tell-A-Tale Troupe of the Arkansas Arts Center presented three performances of a children's play, "Androcles and the Lion" for all the elementary school children of Hope.

The performances were sponsored locally by the Hope Junior Auxiliary and presented under the auspices of the Department of State Services of the Arkansas Arts Center.

The State Legislature has appropriated funds which help to defray some of the expenses of providing the services of this department to the people of the state. The remainder of the cost is provided by local sponsors, such as the Junior Auxiliary. The performances were very well received by approximately 1500 enthusiastic Hope children.

Accompanying the Troupe to Hope were: Mrs. Dale Bumpers, wife of the Governor of Arkansas; three members of the Arts Center Board, Mrs. Frank McGehee and Mrs. Booker Worthen of Little Rock, Mrs. William Nolen, Jr. of El Dorado and Bill Bond, Director of State Services of the Arkansas Arts Center.

Mrs. Bumpers spoke to the children at each performance and explained the part their state government played in bringing the play to them. After the performance, she greeted the children and teachers at the door. Mrs. Bumpers and the other visitors were later honored guests of the Junior Auxiliary at a luncheon held at the Town & Country Restaurant.

benefit from each program. The amount of the benefit will be figured in each case as though the other did not exist (except that duplicate credit for military service cannot be given).

Q. I am a widow who remarried before age 60. Am I eligible for benefits on my deceased husband's record?

A. No, you are not, but you are eligible for wife's benefits on your present husband's record if you are age 62, have been married for one year, and your present husband is entitled to benefits.

Should your present marriage end by divorce or your husband's death, you could become entitled to widow's benefits on your first husband's record if it would give you a higher benefit than that based on your second husband's record.

Q. My husband and I both started our social security payments on his record when we reached age 65. My payment as his wife has been half as much as his. He has just passed away. Will my payment be the same, or as a widow, will I get more?

A. Under present law, your payment as a widow will be 82½ per cent of your husband's amount. As a wife your payment was only 50 per cent of his amount. The higher amount will first be payable for the month of his death. In addition to a monthly payment, a single death payment will be paid to you. The usual amount is $255, but it will be less if your husband's primary amount was less than $85 a month. The old payments can be terminated, and the new ones started if you will call the social security office.

We can't burst into paeans of praise for the bidding today, but six spades is a very good contract.

South went right up with dummy's ace of spades; led a heart to the ace; ruffed a heart; returned to his hand with the king of diamonds and ruffed another heart. East was unkind enough to overruff and to return a club. South won with the ace and drew trumps. He had to use all of his trumps to pull West's last tooth and when diamonds failed to break South was down one.

All this represents a lot of bad luck. Yet there was another line of play at South's disposal that would have brought the slam home.

All South had to do at trick two was to lead a low diamond from dummy and duck it. It wouldn't matter which defender won or what was led back. South would have

Aim to Align Courts

By BILL SIMMONS

Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The General Assembly passed a law in 1971 giving the state Supreme Court statutory authority to reduce criminal case sentences if the court deems the sentences excessive.

The measure, Act. 333, was sponsored by Sen. Max Howell of Little Rock for the Arkansas Bar Association Executive Committee and the Judicial Council, an organization of judges.

The act made a general revision procedure to bring them into line with civil procedures.

Jack Lessenberry of Little Rock, the lawyer who handled the research for the drafting of the legislation, said the court had exercised such authority previously, but sparingly.

In recent years, the court has occasionally modified the penalty imposed in some civil cases, but apparently has not altered sentences given in criminal convictions.

On Jan. 10, for example, the court reduced from $5,000 to $2,000 the amount of damages awarded against a woman whose dog had bitten a neighbor's child. Nothing else in the case was changed by the Supreme Court.

On Monday, the court reduced by $773 the damages awarded in an accidental death case, but left all other aspects of the case unchanged.

During 1971, at least two cases came to the court's attention with reference to Act 333 and its sentence-reduction provisions. The court granted no relief.

One case involved a conviction on a drug charge under a state law providing for a prison term of two to five years. Other defendants were not tried until after that law had been amended to provide for a lesser penalty.

The convicted defendant asked for a reduction in sentence since his fellow defendants would not be subject to the same punishment imposed on him.

The court responded that the "right to exercise clemency is vested not in the courts but in the chief executive under Article 6, Section 18 of the Arkansas Constitution."

In another case, the defendant, convicted of the theft of a billfold, the court was told that it had received, under Act 333,

"the unquestioned authority to reduce a sentence of one convicted of crime, if we deem such sentence excessive."

The court answered that it had concluded that the evidence was strong enough to uphold the conviction, that the trial court had made no error, and that, therefore, "the extent of our authority under Act 333 is not before us."

Some cases in which the court did choose to reduce criminal penalties go back to near the times when the state's constitution was adopted in 1874.

In an 1879 case, for example, a defendant was convicted of involuntary manslaughter. The judge, in instructing the jury, had explained the penalty for a manslaughter conviction. The jury imposed a sentence of two years in returning a conviction of involuntary manslaughter. The court held that the trial judge apparently had failed to explain the sentence for involuntary manslaughter and, giving the defendant the benefit of the doubt, cut the penalty to one year.

In a first-degree murder conviction case in 1892, the court decided that the evidence did not support conviction on the charge of first-degree murder, but did support a second-degree murder conviction. Rather than sending the case back for another trial, however, the court sent the case back only so the defendant could be given a sentence appropriate to a second-degree murder conviction.

Elsewhere the court reduced a robbery conviction to grand larceny.

Perhaps the clearest instance of sentence reduction came in 1905, however, when Crite Petty was convicted of second-degree murder in the stabbing death of Arthur Pursur in Little Rock in an altercation. Petty was given a sentence of 15 years in prison by the jury.

The Supreme Court said in that case:

"The jury evidently found that the defendant (Petty) commenced the assault; and, although this assault was provided by indecent language of Pursur, still provocation caused by words only is not sufficient to reduce a homicide from murder to manslaughter. There is a conflict of evidence, and the finding of the jury as to the grade of the offense must stand. But, taking the whole evidence

No Self Pity When Actress Loses Eye

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Sandy Duncan now is permanently blind in her left eye, but the last person to feel sorry about it is Sandy Duncan.

"It's no big deal, really," says the pert, blue-eyed television star. "It doesn't affect anything."

Miss Duncan underwent a 10-hour operation Nov. 1 at the UCLA Medical Center to remove a benign tumor from behind her left eye. Because the surgery was through the top of her head, there are no visible scars.

Both large, beautiful eyes move normally. Is the sight really gone permanently from the left one?

"Yes, it is," she said matter-of-factly Monday. "They say, well nothing's impossible, but there's no medical proof or reason why it should return."

For one so young—Sandy's 26—was the loss a terrific blow?

"Not really, to be honest." At her hillside home, CBS' "Funny Face" star is radiant, full of life and enthusiasm.

"I've been near-sighted most of my life, you know. My father says I can see more than I can understand anyway. So I really was not that affected by it," she said.

"I tell you what would have affected me more, being in the business that I'm in—if the motor area had been damaged and I had lost movement of the eye. You see, the appearance of the eye is more important, actually, than the vision."

Miss Duncan, a product of the Dallas summer theater, received Tony Award nominations for her roles in the Broadway productions of "The Boy Friend" and "Canterbury Tales."

TV commercials helped bring her to the movies. "The Million-Dollar Duck" and "Star-Spangled Girl," and the weekly TV series she resumes filming in May or June. Thirteen segments were run before it was cut short in December by her illness.

"As soon as I was well I went to the different floors, visiting people," Miss Duncan said. "I'd thought maybe my business is kind of frivolous, but after I saw their faces, when I would come into their rooms, I know that this business has a great deal of importance to people. Makes them happy. I'm proud of what I do."

caused by very provoking language on the part of pursur, and under circumstances which in our opinion show that the punishment assessed by the jury is excessive."
The court reduced that penalty to five years in prison.

Q. My husband is 65 but earns too much to receive social security payments. I am 62. Will my husband's earnings stop me from receiving social security?
A. Your husband's earnings affect all social security payments based on his work; this includes wife's benefit's, as well as his retirement benefits. However, if you have worked long enough under social security to qualify for benefits based on your own earnings, you may receive payments as a retired worker regardless of your husband's earnings.

Q. I am now working in Civil Service, but before I had this job I worked on a job covered by social security. I have already earned the required number of quarters for social security benefits for a man of my age. When I reach retirement age, I will have 20 years of service with the government. How will the two retirement programs be combined?

A. They will not be combined. You will receive a retirement

Letters

To The Editor

This is your newspaper. Write to it. Address letters to: Editor The Star, P.O. Box 648, Hope, Ark. 71801. All letters must be signed, with address so you are identified to the newspaper staff, but if the character of the letter permits we will allow use of a pen-name in the publication, in which case you should add "Citizen," or some other word below your real name and address. Pen-names are permitted when a letter deals only with issues. Direct attacks upon public officials, however, must bear the writer's name for publication.

Wants Centennial Edition

Editor the Star: Please publish a notice in the "Hope Star" that I am desirous of purchasing a legible copy of the Centennial Edition published Friday, June 26, 1936. I would also like to purchase a reprint of the 1936 Centennial Edition printed in 1967. I will pay $15.00 for a legible and complete 1936 Edition and $10.00 for a legible and complete 1967 Edition.

I am particularly interested in these two editions because my family settled approximately three to four miles from Dooley's Ferry near what is now known as the Bois d'Arc Lake Area, and we still maintain a small interest in property in the vicinity. We also have many relatives in the Spring Hill Area; one is a first cousin, Wallace Monroe who works at Crow Burlingame, with whom I am sure you are acquainted. I noted in the copy of the 1967 reprint that the Jamison family was mentioned several times. I was named for Uncle Jim Jamison, a great-uncle.

I will be grateful to you if you can locate these two copies. If the above amounts aren't sufficient, please let me know.

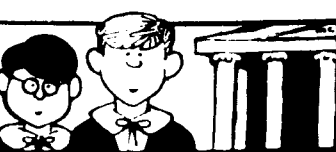

Thanks. Yours very truly,

Pay Your Bills, Help Keep Economy Perking

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—"If only my income were higher..." sighs the $85-a-week young man. "Just think how much better off we'd be if we had more money..." remarks a wife to her $650-a-week husband.

Surveys reveal that many wage earners, executives and professionals within these income brackets feel that their money worries would be over if their incomes were just one-third higher.

Unfortunately money problems don't necessarily disappear as income increases. In fact, more money to spend means more choices to make and this can lead to conflict. It also may lead to careless spending and, eventually, financial disaster.

These are the words of a bill collector who is promoting NATIONAL PAY YOUR BILLS WEEK, February 7-11.

"Credit is the stimulus to thoughtless spending for many people," states Webb Leseter, Jr., Manager of the Hempstead County Credit Bureau. "It's convenient, easy to obtain, and allows the consumer to become a user of whatever he buys before he actually pays for it!"

If used in moderation, credit is a great deal and everybody's happy. Mr. Leseter continues. The consumer has a higher standard of living, his purchases stimulate the economy and this, in turn, creates jobs for more people.

However, about 40 percent of the American people have difficulty paying their bills. Says Mr. Leseter, "When you consider that consumers had a total of some $105 billion in installment credit obligations at the beginning of this year, much of which is overdue, it can have unhappy effects."

First, the consumer debtor is uncomfortable because he can't meet his promises to pay. Second, the creditor finds it increasingly difficult to meet his own obligations when his customers don't pay their bills. He'll probably raise his prices to cover the cost of the debts owed him.

1. Learn to budget your money. This doesn't mean that you have to keep detailed records of every transaction. A budget is a financial plan. It shows you how to spend your money over the next 12 months.

2. Avoid impulse buying. Don't rush into any credit obligation without considering its consequences, especially your ability to pay.

3. Make sure your loan payments are in line with your present income. Don't depend on overtime or anticipated pay raises.

4. Complete payment of one loan before taking on another unless the combined payments are easily within your ability to repay from existing income.

5. Shop for credit terms. Consumers pay between 6 and 40 percent interest for the use of money. Choose sound terms that will minimize installment charges and provide for full repayment at the earliest possible time.

Hempstead Credit Bureau is one of 2500 members of the American Collectors Association, sponsor of NATIONAL PAY YOUR BILLS WEEK.

Last weekend employees of Young American Homes got an all-expense three-day deep sea fishing trip to Cameron, La. Fishing from aboard Sunrise No. 3 proved very successful for the 66 employees able to go. The trip was the mobile home plant's way of expressing gratitude to its employees.

Groundhog to Make Forecast

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) — Punxsutawney Phil, the forecasting groundhog, comes up with a familiar refrain when he pokes his nose above ground today—six more weeks of winter weather.

Local legend has it that if Phil sees his shadow on Groundhog Day, more winter weather is in prospect, and if he doesn't, spring should be just around the corner.

Those who witnessed a dress rehearsal of the event on snow-covered Gobbler's Knob on Sunday said Phil's shadow was ominous and dark and six more weeks of bitter weather are supposedly coming.

But, then, members of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club say they can't remember Phil predicting anything else, and that goes back about 90 years.

Key Labor Cases Going to U.S. Court

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the year's most-important labor cases is ready for action in the Supreme Court.

It tests the right of unions to fine members who quit the union during a strike and return to their jobs.

The case comes from New Hampshire where 31 members of the Textile Workers union, AFL-CIO, worked during a 1968-69 strike at the Nashua plant of the International Paper Box Machine Co.

The union tried to fine them a day's wages for each day they worked, but the National Labor Relations Board held the fines were illegal under the Taft-Hartley law.

The U.S. Circuit Court in Boston backed the union. The NLRB then appealed to the Supreme Court through Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold.

Soon after the justices return from a recess later this month they are expected to announce whether they will hear the appeal. Similar cases are pending in other federal courts.

In 1967, the Supreme Court upheld fines levied by the United Automobile Workers against members who crossed picket lines during strikes at two Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. plants in 1969 and 1962.

The 5-4 decision by Justice William J. Brennan Jr. rejected the argument that this was a form of illegal coercion. He emphasized the workers had "enjoyed full union membership" and attended the strike-vote meetings.

Most if not all of the 31 defecting Textile Workers members had been at a union meeting at which the strike and the fining of strikebreakers were approved.

However, an important distinction may be that the UAW workers had not quit the union before returning to their jobs. The NLRB takes the position the workers at the Nashua plant were not bound by union discipline once they quit the union.

The Taft-Hartley law guarantees workers "the right to refrain from any or all" union activities. The government appeal said this right would be curtailed if the Textile Workers union were allowed to fine the ex-members.

This "would deprive the employee, once he voted for the strike, of the freedom to change his mind in the light of ensuing events."

The Circuit Court's unanimous decision last June took a different view. Judge Edward M. McEntee said that, although Taft-Hartley "gives an employee the right to refuse to undertake and involve himself in union activities, it does not necessarily give him the right to abandon these activities in midcourse once he has undertaken them voluntarily."

Of unknown significance are the changes in the Supreme Court since 1967.

Newport Hit by Major Fire

NEWPORT, Ark. (AP)—An explosion and fire destroyed five buildings in downtown Newport early today and forced evacuation of about 90 patients from the Newport Hospital.

No major injury was reported, although State Police said some persons were treated for cuts from glass. Officers also said some persons suffered from exposure to near freezing temperatures during the evacuation.

Police said windows were broken out in a large area by the force of the blast.

Patrolman Ronald Gray said he was six blocks away at the time of the explosion and that he was knocked down by the blast. Officers said many residents reported seeing a giant fireball in the sky. Officers quoted a member of the city's sanitation crew as saying he saw the roof of the Leader Department Store rise 400 to 500 feet in the air and then land on top of the store. A 12-to 14-foot steel beam was thrown about 70 feet by the explosion.

New Brunswick's eastern boundary is entirely water, made up of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Northumberland Strait.
